Section one : Reading comprehension

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions on it.

Text:

It seemed that Malik had just about had it with his wife of three years. He no longer thought her attractive or interesting : he considered her a poor housekeeper who was overweight. Someone he no longer wanted to live with. He was so upset that he finally decided on divorce. But before he served her the papers, he made an appointment with a psychologist for the specific purpose of finding out how to make life as difficult as possible for his wife.

The psychologist listened to Malik's story and then gave his advice. « Well Malik, I think I've got the perfect solution for you. From tonight when you get home, I want you to start treating your wife as if she were a goddess. That's right, a goddess. I want you to change your attitude towards her completely. Start doing everything in your power to please her. Listen intently to her when she talks about her problems. Take her out to dinner on weekends. Then after two months of this wonderful behaviour, just pack your bags and leave her ».

That night he started treating his wife as if she were a goddess. He brought her breakfast in bed and had flowers delivered to her. They read books to each other at night and Malik listened to her as never before... He kept it up for the two months. After the allotted time, the psychologist called Malik at home, Malik, he asked Malik in surprise. « you must be kidding ! I'm married to a goddess. I've never been satisfied in my life. In fact, I'm discovering new wonderful things about her every single day. Divorce? Not on your life ! ». The psychologist hung up wearing a knowing smile.
